ABOUT STEATITE

Steatite, established in 1938, is a leader in rugged computing, custom lithium batteries, secure communications, and advanced antennas. Renowned for their reliability in harsh environments, they excel in custom engineering, backed by in-house design, manufacturing, and testing teams. Their cutting-edge technology empowers customers to operate in the most extreme conditions. Over the years, Steatite has experienced significant growth and now operates across multiple offices.

CHALLENGES

Challenges included:

- Low density area
- A limited pool of suitable candidates
- Strict security clearance requirements
- Finding candidates situated between two offices.

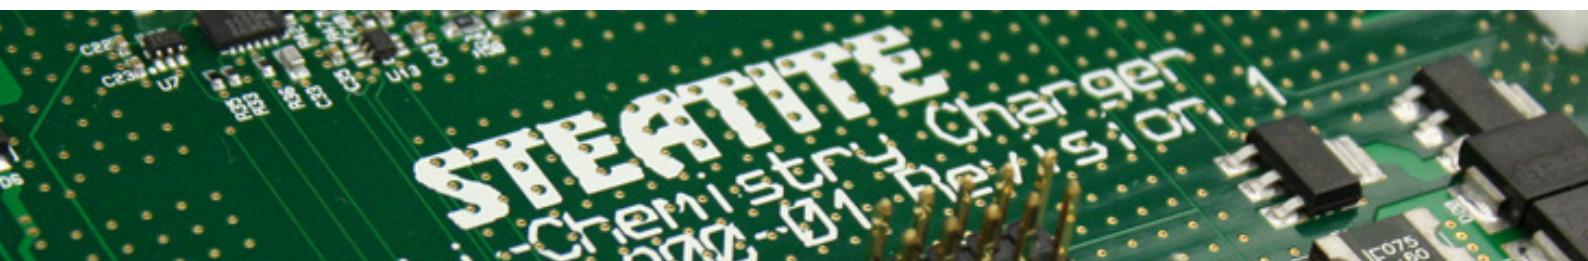

Despite these challenges, we worked closely with Steatite to successfully identify and place the right candidates.

SOLUTIONS

We addressed these challenges through regular meetings with a dedicated account manager and onsite visits to ensure alignment with requirements, expanding beyond the UK and leveraging our database of passive candidates. We targeted key locations and ensured security clearance compliance. Drawing on the expertise of our internal teams in mechanical, manufacturing, electronics, and software, we broadened our approach to successfully fill a variety of roles.

SUMMARY

We have successfully partnered with Steatite to fill both permanent and contract roles, covering a variety of positions across multiple locations. Over the years, our collaboration has grown, supported by a strong track record of delivering top talent despite challenges. Looking ahead, we're excited to build on this momentum and further strengthen our partnership as we move into 2025.
